Benedict XVI and the Eucharistic Revival: Part II

Note: This is not the homily. That can be found on our website.

By: Dr. Tim O'Malley

January 5, 2023

As part of the Eucharistic Revival, parishes around the diocese are sharing articles taken from the Eucharistic Revival Blog. This is one in a series highlighting the Eucharistic Legacy of Pope Benedict XVI.

The Eucharist Is a Mystery to Be Believed

Benedict XVI's Sacramentum Caritatis articulates the centrality of the Eucharist to the very identity of the Church. The Eucharist is not reducible to just another religious practice but is instead the privileged way that the Church encounters the mystery of love in Jesus Christ. God is love, and from the beginning of time, has revealed Himself as the Beloved. And in the Eucharist, he dwells with us. As the Church remembers Christ's sacrifice upon the cross at Mass, the Word once again becomes flesh and dwells among us. This little bit of matter—a small piece of bread and some drops of wine—is transformed into the presence of divine love accompanying us along the way.

This is the heart of the Eucharistic faith of the Church, one where our Sunday assembly is not the result of good strategic planning, or an innovative business strategy given to us by smart consultants. Nor for that matter is the Church the assembly of those who have earned their salvation through the virtue of her members. This assumption remains the American sin par excellence, a form of Pelagianism where we imagine if we are just good enough, just nice enough, and pleasant enough, then God will love us.

Not so, Benedict interrupts. He writes: "The Eucharist is Christ who gives himself to us and continually builds us up as his body. Hence, in the striking interplay between the Eucharist which builds up the Church, and the Church herself which 'makes' the Eucharist, the primary causality is expressed in the first formula: the Church is able to celebrate and adore the mystery of Christ present in the Eucharist precisely because Christ first gave himself to her in the sacrifice of the Cross" (Sacramentum Caritatis, no. 14).

Healing Perceptions of the Church

The Church is first, herself, a gift of love. The Eucharistic Revival, therefore, must attend to the imagination of men and women who have come to see the Church as a space of bureaucracy, scandal, or exclusion. The sacrifice of the altar is the very meaning of the Church, and the presence of Christ in every tabernacle is a prophetic interruption summoning each of us to recognize that we are convoked first by the God who is love. Pastoral accompaniment in the Church, as Pope Francis has reminded us, is in fact a consequence of this Eucharistic identity of the Church. We are not the distributors of a self-authored salvation. God saves (as Pope Benedict reminded us in Spe Salvi), and it's our job to invite every person on this earth to personally know this fact.

Lest all this sound a bit too complicated, let me be personal here. When I go to Mass, I don't go because I have chosen to gather with a group of like-minded people who just happen to agree with me about the same things. We have different politics, different ways of being a parent, and we root for different college football teams (Go Irish, Beat Wolverines!). I go because here, in my neighborhood, God dwells among us. In my poverty, there God is. And learning to love the real Church of my neighborhood is part and parcel of the Eucharistic Revival. God has come to each of these men and women to share Himself with them. If I can't deal with that, it's I who needs to change rather than God.

For Reflection:

- 1) How do these insights about the Church change the way that you think about evangelization?
- 2) How can the Eucharist be a source of deeper unity within the Church?

Summer Evangelization Walks

This summer, we are planning several days to do door-to-door evangelization. While it might seem intimidating, it really isn't as hard as you likely imagine.

We mostly just knock on the door and get to know people. We take prayer intentions and answer questions. It is not the high pressure approach you may have experienced when others have come to your door.

So, please consider pushing out of your comfort zone a little and giving this a try.

Poor Box

Poor box funds are used primarily to help elderly residents in the Jeanerette area. Thank you for your generosity!
